Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Utilization of Surplus Prunes Even if production in Europe does not increase, according to Shear we may expect an average annual world production of tons of dried prunes for the next few years. Approximately this quantity was produced in 1927 when the world s prune crop was marketed only with great difficulty and at very low prices. A study of the situation indicates. That during the present period of heavy production, prunes of poor quality and very small. Size should not be permitted to compete directly with those of the better grades and sizes, but should instead be diverted to other and non competitive uses. There is, moreover, reason to believe that the consumption of the French variety of prunes could be considerably increased if a more satisfactory method of canning prunes ready-to serve4 could be found and the present technical difficulties of the canning process overcome.
