Watch Unto Prayer. --1 Pet. Iv. 7. continuing Instant In Prayer. --Rom. xn. 12. Above all things, Christian Villager, if thou wouldst be a man of grace, thou must be a man of prayer. Eemember, this is the grand secret of a holy and happy life. Without this, all other means and endeavours are nothing. Private prayer is like that little regulating wheel or spring which is found in some pieces of machinery, and upon the right and steady going of which, though it be itself very small and hid from view, the good working of all the rest depends. If thou art not possessed of a habit of inward prayer, thy whole spiritual frame will get out of order. Its power, action, and life depend on this. The Scripture saying, that according as a man soweth he shall reap, is most true in this part of spiritual husbandry. If thou sowest prayer by frequently practising it, thou shalt reap prayer by getting a spirit of it; and a spirit of prayer is the greatest blessing which God can give thee after thou art become a child of his kingdom. Only consider some of the precepts and exhortations about prayer which are found in the Word of God: Praywithout...
