A wonderful people! Go and sacrifice yourself and expect something from them! . . . Ever since then there havent been any revolutions. There have been army uprisings or mutinies, which were of indirect value, if any, by influencing public opinion. And since in these days generals no longer revolt, because they have everything they desire, and because the rulers, having learned their lesson from history, take care to flatter them, its all up with the Revolution! Those who work for it sweat and labor with as much success as carrying water in a sieve. . . . I salute these heroes from the door of my seclusion! . . . but I take not a step to accompany them. I am not of their glorious race. I am a quiet, well-fed domestic bird, and Im not sorry for it, either, when I look at my former comrade Fernando Salvatierra, your fathers idol, dressed winters in summer fashion, and summers in winter fashion, living upon bread and cheese, with a cell reserved for him in every prison of the Peninsula, and bothered by the police at every step. . . . Its all very fine; the papers print the heros name, and perhaps some day history will speak of him, but I prefer my office desk, my chair which makes me think of the canons gathered in the choir, and the generosity of don Pablo, who is as lavish as a...
