Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Philosophical Magazine and Journal, Vol. 66: Comprehending the Various Branches of Science, the Liberal and Fine Arts, Agriculture, Manufactures, and Commerce; For July, August, September, October, November, and December, 1825 To the practical ornithologist, who is desirous of promoting and extending his favourite study by the communication of his own personal observations and remarks, an intimate acquaintance with the various notes of the feathered tribes is of such vast importance, that any difficulties he may encounter in obtaining it, will be more than compensated by the numerous advantages it affords. In many instances it enables him to detect species that might otherwise elude his observation. Thus, the landrail, concealed in the long grass of luxuriant meadows, where it runs with great rapidity, and is sprung with difficulty; the grasshopper warbler, closely embowered in thick hedges and bushy dingles, where it employs every artifice to escape notice; and the sedge warbler, secluded amid the reeds and other aquatic productions of pools and marshes are much more frequently heard than seen - the harsh call of the first, the...
